

American Historical Periodicals from the American Antiquarian Society, Series 6

A completion and extension of Series 1-5

ONLY GALE'S EXCLUSIVE PARTNERSHIPS, TOOLS, AND PLATFORMS CREATE NEW RESEARCH POTENTIAL TO SUPPORT ADVANCED HUMANITIES SCHOLARSHIP.

Providing new research opportunities, American Historical Periodicals from the American Antiquarian Society, Series 6 brings the previous published Series 1-5 more firmly into the 20th century, with titles running up to 1923. It does not represent the short date ranges seen in the previously published series, but the entirety of publishing history in the Colonies and subsequent United States. It extends coverage or fills gaps in issues for approximately 45 titles previously digitized in Series 1-5, and importantly adds more than 150 entirely new periodical titles recently acquired by the American Antiquarian Society.

EXTEND COVERAGE AND FILL CRITICAL GAPS IN HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVES

Following the announcement of Gale's exclusive partnership with the American Antiquarian Society to digitize the Society's current and future periodical holdings, they're now presenting 550,000 pages of additional content. American Historical Periodicals from the American Antiquarian Society, Series 6 contains nearly 200 titles, offering diverse primary source material for studying the thought, culture, and life in the United States through the eyes of those who experienced it. The collection includes unusual and short-lived magazines as well as better-known titles with long runs. Topics encompass a broad spectrum including agriculture, anthropology, art, archaeology, education, family life, fashion, industrialization, literature, medicine, music, photography, politics, religion, science, sport, and temperance.

FASCINATING TITLES NEWLY DIGITIZED

American Historical Periodicals from the American Antiquarian Society, Series 6 adds more than 150 newly-digitized titles that were previously unavailable online. The collection also extends the coverage of many key titles into the twentieth century.

Key titles which have been extended include: Banner of Light, Woman's Journal, Scientific American, The Inland Printer, and more.

A word from the American Antiquarian Society:

"We chose Gale as our partner because of their commitment to helping us share the rich periodical holdings of the American Antiquarian Society as widely as possible among libraries of all sorts, their willingness to digitize additional historical periodicals as we add them to the collections here in Worcester, and their enthusiasm for developing state-of-the-art technology tools to help researchers to unlock these remarkable (and heretofore underutilized) resources of nineteenth-century journals and magazines."
