

HeinOnline Libraries

Hein distributes its content through collections or “libraries.” Institutions subscribe to Hein’s defined “core collection” of libraries and select additional relevant “a-la-carte” libraries that suit the needs of their community. The a-la-carte libraries include unique thematic digital content, such as world constitutions or moot court documentation. The summaries are based on information from Hein; up-to-date information on the extent of volumes and pages in each library may be found on Hein’s website.

Core Collection

Federal Register (FR) Library The FR is the official journal of the activities and decisions of the federal government of the United States. It is produced daily (except holidays) and is compiled as public domain material by the Office of the Federal Register (within the National Archives and Records Administration) and printed by the Government Printing Office. Hein's FR coverage is comprehensive and begins from its inception (1936). The library also includes The Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), which is the codification of the general and permanent rules and regulations (sometimes called administrative law) published in the Federal Register by the executive departments and agencies of the federal government of the United States from inception (1938). Also included is The United States Government Manual, which, since 1939, has provided comprehensive information on the agencies of the legislative, judicial, and executive branches, and a daily and weekly compilation of presidential documents since 1965.

Law Journal Library Currently Hein hosts virtually all U.S. law reviews from their inception to the present, and it also provides access to dozens of Australian, Canadian, and other non-U.S. journals. It contains approximately 1,530 law and law-related periodicals. Hein purports to have the most comprehensive online full-text coverage of law review articles—and is the only online source for older articles. It provides coverage of all periodicals from the first published issue through the most current issue available to Hein through contracts with publishers. (The current issues of many law reviews are not available to Hein.) Users may search by title, author, subject, state, or country published, full text, and date. There are some functional problems, including that key word searching of full text of articles can lead to overwhelming results. Hein is working on improving their search engine to include the ability to search individual journals.¹
