INTRODUCING THE South Asia Archive

The South Asia Archive offers an easily searchable source of research and provides access to over 4.5 million pages of original content from across the Humanities and Social Sciences. When asked about the SAA, Professor David Arnold, of University of Warwick, observed that “The South Asia Archive is a wonderful source for teaching and a superb tool for research; it is also a fascinating challenge to the academic understanding of an entire region of the modern world”.

Professor Boria Majumdar and Dr. Sharmistha Gooptu have worked with Routledge to select a number of highlights from the SAA, that serve as an insight into the wealth of important research waiting to be discovered within the resource. The following content has been chosen from source material that includes: extensive runs of journals; hundreds of books; thousands of reports and proceedings; and film ephemera. Choose the subject areas of interest to you and gain access to the research today!
